2024 · WHAT ISSUES SHOULD I CONSIDER WHEN DEALING WITH HIGH INFLATION?

inflation? If so, consider the following: Take into account how your personal expenses may have changed relative to the general cost of inflation, and update your emergency funds as needed. Where applicable, look for additional ways to save money on your necessary expenses (e.g., electing annual payments vs. monthly, buying staple goods in bulk, etc.), and consider temporarily reducing/delaying certain unnecessary expenses to relieve stress on your cash flow. Review any important upcoming purchases you had planned that may be subject to price increases. If appropriate, consider accelerating those purchases to potentially lock in a lower price.		<ul> <li>Do you need to review your asset allocations in light of high inflation? If so, consider the following:</li> <li>Be cognizant of the increased levels of interest-rate risk associated with a high fixed-income allocation during times of high inflation. Consider maintaining, or increasing (if appropriate), your exposure to equities and other asset classes that may be better positioned to keep up with inflation.</li> </ul> working, are you concerned about the ability of your arnings to keep up with high inflation? If so, consider ways bu might increase your income (e.g., ask for a raise, change jobs,		Keep in mind that longer bond durations will be subject to higher volatility if interest rates rise. To mitigate some of this risk, consider allocating more toward shorter bond durations, but be mindful of the difference in yield between short- and long-duration bonds.
retired, are you concerned about your retirement		<ul> <li>Are you concerned about your fixed-income portfolio's ability to manage the effects of high inflation? If so, consider the following:</li> <li>Consider purchasing Series I Savings Bonds (I Bonds) and/or Treasury Inflation-Protected Securities (TIPS) as an inflation hedge to your portfolio. Remember that I Bonds (unlike TIPS)</li> </ul>
<ul> <li>Acome's ability to keep up with high inflation? If so, consider ne following:</li> <li>Be mindful that, unlike many other retirement income sources,</li> <li>Social Security benefits have a built-in cost of living adjustment (COLA) that helps offset the effects of inflation. Consider delaying (or repaying and delaying, if already begun) your benefits to increase both your overall income and the level of income being subject to a COLA.</li> <li>Consider purchasing an annuity (or changing/replacing an existing annuity, if applicable) with an increasing income benefit as an inflation hedge. Be mindful that the increasing income option starts lower but will eventually exceed the fixed income option.</li> <li>Identify when that break-even point will occur, and be sure to factor in family health/longevity when making your election.</li> </ul>		<ul> <li>have zero volatility, but be mindful of their holding period requirements, purchase limits, and early liquidation penalties.</li> <li>Consider purchasing Certificates of Deposit (CDs) and/or Multi-Year Guaranteed Annuities (MYGAs) as a zero-volatility bond alternative. Be cognizant of the limited flexibility for penalty-free withdrawals (e.g., 5%–10% per year) that many MYGAs offer, as well as any applicable penalties that may pertain to early withdrawal of CDs.</li> <li>Consider employing a fixed-income asset (e.g., individual bonds, CDs, MYGAs, etc.) laddering strategy to help mitigate interest-rate risk and reinvestment risk. However, be cognizant of the challenges and limitations (e.g., time burden of management, substantial purchase requirements, etc.) that may come with such strategies. (continue on next page)</li> </ul>

2024 · WHAT ISSUES SHOULD I CONSIDER WHEN DEALING WITH HIGH INFLATION?

ASSET & DEBT ISSUES (CONTINUED)	YES	NO	TAX ISSUES (CONTINUED)	YES
you need to review your cash holdings? If so, consider the swith holding too much cash during times of high inflation. nindful of where you keep your emergency fund, and be sure xplore other options (e.g., high-yield savings/checking accounts, rt-term CDs, etc.) that may offer better growth on your idle n. Consider investing any surplus cash, as waiting for rates to before putting your cash to work may expose you to market ng risk.			<ul> <li>Be cognizant of areas of the tax code that do not receive inflationary adjustments under current law (e.g., Social Security taxability, NIIT, SALT limitations, etc.), and consider how that might impact certain tax strategies moving forward.</li> <li>Do you need to review any potential Roth conversion opportunities in light of high inflation? If so, consider whether periods of high inflation may present opportunities to convert some assets to Roth accounts at lower share prices.</li> </ul>
Do you need to review your debts in light of high inflation? If so, consider the following:
Be cognizant of your variable-interest-rate debts. Understand			OTHER ISSUES	YES
<ul> <li>how the rate is calculated and to what extent inflation may cause your interest rate to increase.</li> <li>If appropriate, consider paying down variable-interest-rate debts</li> </ul>			Are you reconsidering any of your financial goals (e.g., retirement) or risk tolerance in light of high inflation?
<ul> <li>or refinancing them to fixed rates.</li> <li>To potentially lock in a lower interest rate, consider expediting the process of financing any large upcoming purchases you had planned, but be mindful of any recent or anticipated price increases and/or interest rate changes.</li> </ul> TAX ISSUES	YES	NO	<ul> <li>Do you need to reassess your life and disability insurance coverage in light of high inflation? If so, consider the following:</li> <li>Assess the risk of increased living expenses, and/or the need to replace a higher income, that your life and disability insurance may fail to adequately cover should you die an untimely death or become disabled.</li> <li>Review your ability to add (or utilize any existing) inflation and/or</li> </ul>
Have your taxable accounts been experiencing increased levels of volatility due to high inflation? If so, consider ways you might rebalance your portfolio at a reduced tax cost (e.g., harvesting short-term losses, selling securities at reduced capital gains, etc.), but be mindful of wash sale rules, as well as the $3,000 ordinary income offset limit on capital losses.			<ul> <li>benefit increase riders associated with your policies (if available).</li> <li>Do you need to reassess the coverage amounts for any other insurance policies (e.g., homeowners, renters, auto, etc.) in light of high inflation? If so, consider the effect inflation may have on the replacement cost of your vehicles, home (including any vacation or rental properties), and other goods. Review your coverage amounts to ensure they are adequate for your needs.</li> </ul>
<ul> <li>Do you need to review your current (and anticipated) income tax brackets in light of high inflation? If so, consider the following:</li> <li>Determine whether your income may have increased to a greater or lesser extent than marginal tax brackets, and consider how that may impact your effective tax rate. Be mindful of certain tax strategies (such as favoring pre-tax or Roth contributions)</li> </ul>			Do you need to review your gifting and/or estate plan in light of high inflation? If so, consider the impact inflation may have on your existing plans for transferring assets to the next generation.

moving forward. (continue on next column)

Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc. (CFP Board) owns the CFP® certification mark, the CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™ certification mark, and the CFP® certification mark (with plaque design) logo in the United States, which it authorizes use of by individuals who successfully complete CFP Board's initial and ongoing certification requirements.

Prism Planning and Solutions Group, LLC (Prism) is a dba of Insight Advisors, a Registered Investment Adviser. Advisory services are only offered to clients or prospective clients where Insight Advisors and its representatives are properly licensed or exempt from licensure. This material is solely for informational purposes. Past performance is no guarantee of future returns. Investing involves risk and possible loss of principal capital. No advice may be rendered by Insight Advisors unless a client service agreement is in place.

Prism is providing this flowchart for informational purposes only from sources believed to be reliable, but cannot make any guarantees as to its completeness, accuracy or timeliness.

Julia Peloso-Barnes, CFP, CEO/Sr. Wealth Manager

Prism Planning and Solutions Group, LLC 777 Westchester Ave, Suite 101 White Plains, NY 10604 Julia@PPSgrp.com | +1 (914) 831-3050 | www.PPSgrp.com